Here in [illegible] is not dangerous if truth is [illegible]. I told the monsignor some [illegible] lecture. He could not make me falsify [illegible]. He cannot make me believe [illegible] Romish traditions are better than the [illegible] he does not read that book. I [illegible] for he mixed up John the Baptist [illegible] the beloved disciple, and did not seem [illegible] difference. But no matter. PROVIDENCE, Sept. 25.—With clear skies overhead this morning, thousands of persons poured into Bristol by boat and train, to the laying of the corner stone of Burnside memorial hall. It had been once deferred to enable President Arthur to be present. He arrived about noon. Among the guests were Attorney-General Brewster, Major Seth B. French and General Aspinwall, of New York. At Colonel Caleb's residence the president's path was strewn with flowers by twenty maidens. A reception committee gave a welcome to President Monroe in 1817 at the same house. After a short stay within the house and at the site of the buildings the president and party alighted and were conducted to seats reserved on the platform. The ceremony of laying the corner stone was performed by the grand lodge of Masons, after which Judge Lebaron B. Colt delivered an oration.

Long King Sing should be welcomed to our great city of factories and homes.

Wool Growers in Council.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—In response to a call issued by officers of the several state wool growers associations, about fifty delegates to the national wool growers convention met here to-day. There was a general expression of opinion in favor of the re-enactment of the old tariff on wool. A. M. Garland of Illinois came in for some denunciation, a charge being made that he allowed the wool growers association to fall to pieces, the result being a reduction of the tariff on wool in the interest of manufacturers of woolen fabrics. Hon. Geo. L. Converse, democratic congressman from Columbus, Ohio, addressed the convention, favoring the restoration of the old tariff on wool. Before adjourning for the afternoon it was resolved to appoint delegates to the national wool growers association which holds its annual meeting to-morrow.

Caused by a Decline in Stocks.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Wall street, 2 P. M.—There is a story in the room to the effect that the failure of J. [illegible] & Co. is due purely to the decline in Villard shares. DISASTROUS STORM.

Lakes Erie and Ontario Visited by a Terrific Gale—Great Loss of Vessels and Property.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 25.—An awful gale set in last night, which is still raging furiously, from the southwest. A number of vessels on the lakes have suffered severely. The water has swept over the docks and submerged all of those at the lower portion of the city to a depth of several feet. The yards of the Central Hudson, and Erie railroads are under water and the track of the Buffalo creek railway submerged. The wind is driving the waters of Lake Erie up in great volume, and the prospect of a very heavy loss seems imminent. In this city the destruction of trees is very great.

LATER.—The schooner York State foundered in the gale last night, and all hands were lost. The crew consisted of the captain and six men. She was grain laden.

SERIOUS DESTRUCTION IN BUFFALO

Several churches were also wrecked. The public bathing houses at York stand, but several private bathing houses were washed away by the high tide. A great large amount of damage was done and lumber piles blown across the street, damaging houses and fences. About 100 feet of side track on the Niagara falls branch of the Central road at the foot of Georgia street was washed away and four [illegible] cars tumbled into the lake, their contents being carried off by the waves. Four of the six telegraph wires on the Central road are disabled and three of the Lake Shore and the Grand Trunk lines are rendered useless. Water in the canal slips and harbor rose to a level with the banks. There is a tremendous current in the Buffalo river, and it took several tugs to tow one vessel to a place of safety. Vessels coming in did not try to make the inner harbor and were lucky to find shelter under the new breakwater, over which the waves dashed to a terrific height. The propellers Chicago and Iron Chief, and the schooners David Dows and James Couch were torn from their fastenings at Niagara. Tugs went to their rescue. The high water subsided as quickly as it rose, falling two feet in less than half an hour.

GREAT LOSS OF SHIPPING

Masters of vessels coming in this morning report the wind as terrific on the lakes. The barge York State in tow of the steam barge Buckeye with wheat from Toledo, broke its tow line when nearing Buffalo, before daylight this morning. The Buckeye was unable to do anything for the barge, and came into port alone. At daylight it was reported that the vessel was ashore near Bay View with the crew in the rigging. From the description furnished it was ascertained that the vessel was the York State. No relief had been sent her up to noon to-day, but a tug will be dispatched this afternoon. Another vessel is ashore at Wind Mill Point, and the life saving crew have gone to her assistance. She is a black three-master and is supposed to be the Columbia, but nothing definite could be learned this morning. The floating elevator Marquette got loose from her moorings in Erie basin and raised havoc with the propeller St. Paul, breaking one of her arches, her guards and other parts. The damage will amount to several hundred dollars. It is also reported she broke the stern of the schooner H. G. Cleveland. The schooner E. Fitzgerald, bound down from Toledo, lost her canvas and had a portion of her bulwarks carried away. She arrived here leaking and her cargo of wheat is thought to be damaged. The schooner Nellie [illegible] staysail and foresail was split. The little schooner Twilight came in with her mainsail gone. Captain John Perew, of the propeller John B. Lyon, reports that he saw an unknown schooner dismasted on the lake yesterday.

DISASTERS ON LAKE ONTARIO

OSWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The schooner Sarepta was driven ashore this morning at East Fairhaven while trying to make that port. The crew was saved. The sloop Sonnet was driven ashore at 3 o'clock last night, but the crew was saved. It was the severest gale in years. No further reports of damage or loss of life are received.

The storm which occurred here last night was disastrous. The wind at one time attained a velocity of fifty four miles per hour. Trees and sign boards were blown down, and the unfinished round house of the Rochester and Pittsburg railroad on the lake shore at South Buffalo, was leveled to the ground. The wheelhouse on Ferry street was entirely demolished. Large panes of glass in several Main street stores were demolished.

SCHOONER LOST

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 25.—A telegram from Captain Bruce, of the schooner Typo, owned here, says the vessel is lost on Amherst island, Lake Ontario, with [illegible] bushels of wheat shipped by [illegible] & Co., of Milwaukee.

POLITICAL.

A Democratic Mass Meeting

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—An audience that filled the large hall of the Cooper Union assembled this afternoon at a call in the interest of democrats of Tammany hall in this city. Many prominent democrats were on the platform. David Dudley Field was nominated chairman and enthusiastically received. Field said the meeting had been called for the purpose of bringing about harmonious action among democrats of this city, as the existence of dissension in the ranks has seriously endangered the success of the party in future. The republican party has mismanaged the affairs of the nation as could be seen by excessive taxation, reckless and extravagant expenditure of public funds and encroachment of federal authority on states. The republican party could not be displaced as long as democrats of this state were not united. Charles A. Dana and Joseph Pulitzer of the Sun and World respectively were among the list of vice presidents. Resolutions were presented by Congressman Porter which called upon all democrats to lay aside their differences and unite against the common enemy and denouncing all leaders and organizations who neglect to carry the resolution into effect. A committee was appointed to present resolutions at the state convention at Buffalo and urge upon democratic masses the necessity of harmonious action.

Democratic Delegates En Route

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—About 450 members of the County democracy left for Buffalo this morning to attend the democratic state convention. The train consisted of fifteen Wagner cars. The Tammany delegates to the same convention also started this morning. The party numbered 530 members and required fifteen cars, outside of which were banners bearing appropriate mottoes.

Greenback Convention

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 25.—The state committee of greenbackers met at 10 o'clock this morning to decide on a permanent organization. Moody Boynton claimed the right to act because he was a member of the national committee. Although at first refused, he was finally allowed to speak, which he did vigorously for ten minutes, asserting that the convention to-day was not a greenback convention but simply to aid the democratic party. Levi R. Pierce of Lynn was chosen president, and Gustavus D. Hutchinson of Boston secretary.

P. Field, who had been chosen temporary chairman, made a short address, in which he warmly eulogized Governor Butler, which was received with great enthusiasm. Debate ensued over the report of the committee on credentials, a number of delegates objecting to the admission of J. P. Bland, present delegate from Athol. Bland is a sympathizer with Moody Boynton and author of a life of Butler. Excited speeches were made, and all was confusion until Bland was excluded by an almost unanimous vote.

THE EMPEROR'S TRAVELS

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A Hamburg correspondent telegraphs that he can positively state that there will be no meeting between the emperor and the czar. An interview was seriously considered but has been abandoned. The emperor will go to Frankfort Thursday, where he will be entertained with a sumptuous banquet by the city. Friday he will attend the Niederwald unveiling, after which he will visit his daughter at Baden Baden and rest three weeks. It is now certain no agreement has been made between Count Kalnoky, the Austrian premier, and Bismarck. European questions of the day were discussed and the conclusion was reached that there is no present reason for the fear that the peace of Europe will be disturbed and but while an alliance between Austria and Germany lasts, neither country has anything to fear.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

THE ATTACK ON NORTHERN PACIFIC SHARES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Press: There is no longer any doubt that a raid on the Northern Pacific aims to destroy Villard's power and it is almost certain it will be accomplished. The movement has been conducted with rare skill and it is believed Jay Gould and his bear contingent, of old time, Addison Cammack and James R. Keene, were the projectors. The loss of $11,000,000 in depreciation of Northern Pacific securities has occurred a most entirely during the last four days. It is unfortunate that in this crisis Villard has not been in New York. He is expected here to-day and his presence will no doubt tend to restore the confidence of friends of the road.

REDUCTION OF FARES

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—The Pan Handle and Kankakee lines began selling tickets to Indianapolis this morning at $1, with a consequent reduction in price to Cincinnati and intermediate points, regular rates merely being added beyond Indianapolis. It now appears that the five cent rate of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois to Indianapolis is made with the condition that this line runs only a night train at that rate and requires purchasers of five-cent tickets to buy sleeping car tickets at $2, so that the minimum rate over this line is $2 05.

MRS. CAREY INTERVIEWED

She Tells the Story of Her Husband's Cowardly Murder by O'Donnell

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—A Herald correspondent has had an interview with Mrs Carey. The following conversation ensued:

"You will have heard, Mrs. Carey," said I, "that I am anxious to hear something of the sad story from your own lips, if it is not too painful for you to tell."

Mrs. Carey said: "You may well call it a sad story, but I have nothing to tell except what has been in the papers. I went away from England so suddenly that I hardly read the details of the last part of this unhappy case."

"Do you think O'Donnell went out to the cape on purpose to shoot your husband?"

"Indeed I never set eyes upon him until the same day O'Donnell and a person called his wife were seated in the second class saloon, I believe."

"At the time of the murder was your husband seated or standing?"

"O'Donnell and the woman were seated on a settee when I saw them and [illegible] I think, but perhaps he was sitting. Indeed I don't really know, for I had gone into the cabin with my child. The passengers used very often to [illegible] down stairs to rest on settees."

PLAYING WITH HIS VICTIM

"Had O'Donnell and your husband been drinking together?"

"They had."

"How long before the murder?"

"Just before it."

"I have heard it said that Dublin detectives have got proof that O'Donnell went out on purpose to kill your husband. Have you heard nothing yourself that proves this?"

"No, nothing. It is not much those detectives won't find out."

"Was O'Donnell very friendly to your husband?"

"He was. We met him first at Dartmouth, and he used to play at dice with Carey and others. He professed to be fond of children and his wife seemed to take a great fancy to one of the girls, and the child used to call her aunty."

"That makes the murder appear a doubly cold blooded act."

"It does," bitterly replied Mrs. Carey.

"Can you recall exactly what happened on the day of the murder? O'Donnell and your husband had been drinking together, you say?"

"Yes. He [illegible] me to come up out of the close place with the children, but I had [illegible] inclined and went to the cabin. Presently I heard O'Donnell ask where Carey himself was. [illegible] was told somewhere on deck. Soon after I heard him say, 'You will come down and have a bottle of beer, won't you?' Then I heard him say [illegible] and then a shot, but I took no notice of it, thinking it was only a cork popping. Then there was another shot and [illegible] he [illegible], 'Oh, Maggie, O'Donnell's shot me.' I ran out and we fell down together and then that was the end of it."

O'DONNELL'S ASSURANCE

"Did not O'Donnell want to shake hands with you afterwards?"

"He did. He held out his hand to me and said, 'Shake hands, Mrs. Carey. [illegible] in the same case [illegible]. Don't be hard on me. I was sent to do it.'"

"That seems proof that the crime was [illegible]."

"Oh, there's proof enough," replied Mrs. Carey, [illegible] the remark she had made at the [illegible] of our conversation.

I am inclined to the belief that her memory is [illegible]. Here I thought well to interrupt the conversation, having first obtained Mrs. Carey's permission to visit her again next day. However, [illegible] of my interview having got about, the way [illegible] her cabin was barred and I had there [illegible] to continue the talk in a new way. [illegible] which Mrs. Carey made replies [illegible] put to her which I need not repeat [illegible] facts likely to be discovered at the coming trial will be with reference to O'Donnell's career and [illegible] against him. In her opinion O'Don[illegible] [illegible]. Possibly he may be made to say nothing about them. So far as she knew [illegible] be thrown on the Phoenix park tragedy. [illegible] Mrs. O'Donnell, or the person called [illegible] on the steamer Kinfauns Castle, but O'Donnell was dangerous, but [illegible] her husband. Mrs. Carey fancied [illegible] applied to herself.

MRS. O'DONNELL IN TEARS

Mrs. O'Donnell was in tears several times during the [illegible] and was also heard imploring O'Donnell not to do it. O'Donnell was heard to say some person whom he [illegible] Carey. All these statements [illegible] with the greatest caution for Mrs. Carey [illegible] contradicts herself. Mrs. Carey [illegible] opinion that she and Carey were [illegible] guarded by the police in London as regards [illegible]. There were two detectives and [illegible] men, but she thinks they did [illegible] carefully watched [illegible]. Illustrating the strangeness [illegible] mind at present [illegible] two persons, at least know positively [illegible] Mrs. O'Donnell [illegible] a woman [illegible] her opinion that the [illegible]. She describes her as [illegible] in appearance, with hair [illegible] and a masculine gait [illegible] speaks of her as a woman [illegible] Mrs. Carey [illegible] to Port Elizabeth who [illegible] great kindness.

WASHINGTON NEWS

American Pork in Germany

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Consul General [illegible] writes to the state department from Frankfort-on-the-Main concerning the prohibition of American pork in Germany. The following extracts from the Cologne Gazette will illustrate how little it [illegible] itself believed in the correctness of the allegation that American pork was unwholesome, direct reference to which is the vote of members from the Hanse towns Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck. They have declared they have been unable to convince themselves of the utility or necessity of this measure and that they have given in their consent only because sanitary conditions alone were urged as a reason for the measure and they were not willing to take the responsibility of being indifferent to the health of the German people. But as wise merchants they have at least averted the worst consequences to their carrying trade, inasmuch as they have obtained permission to import American hog meat for re-exportation and to provision their own ships with American hog meat, that seamen may eat trichina meat with impunity. We have not hitherto heard of nor do the Hanse townsmen believe in the danger of trichinae and the real weakness of the argument in favor of the measure as to sanitary [illegible]. Prohibition of American hog meat will undoubtedly prove very healthy for the pocket interest of our population.

English Jealousy

Consul General Merritt of London in a letter to the state department says the proposed commercial treaty between the United States and Mexico has attracted great attention in England, both in business and government circles and parliament [illegible] English trade with that country [illegible] be supplanted by that of the United States. [illegible] treaty which would act unfavorably to English trade interests.

Civil Service Matters

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The civil service commission have not yet replied to Secretary Folger's letter inquiring as to the preference to be given honorably discharged veterans [illegible] making appointments. It is understood they consider the law itself leaves no room for doubt on this question, but they disagree with Secretary Folger as to there being an equality between four persons certified, [illegible] whom to make his selection [illegible] such persons do not fare equally [illegible].

General Sherman's Retirement

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—General Sherman has fixed upon Nov. 1 as the date upon which he will turn over his command to General Sheridan and prepare to return to civil life, although he will not be placed on the retired list of the army until February 8, 1884.

The Convention of Railroad Managers Still Unable to Agree.

DEATH OF CHIEF ENGINEER MONTAGUE

Forest Fires Near Santa Cruz—Dastardly Murders at Park City, Utah, and Los Angeles, California.

The Railroad Conference Still Undecided.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—To-day's conference of railroad officials as managers are termed evolved nothing important, as far as can be learned. The Northern Pacific continues to make the game, but who is going to win is an open question. It was rumored this evening that Vanderbilt's interest is no longer in the plot to obtain control of the North[illegible], and that it is now confined to Gould and the Central Pacific people. The uncertainty of Wall street was indicated in to-day's dispatches, and had a corresponding effect here. The probabilities are that to-morrow's action will help managers to [illegible]. The belief is that if Villard can stand the strain in Wall street they will come [illegible] for him and secure a good percentage of the Pacific coast pool.

Foolish Economy

A special from Chicago to the Chronicle referring to the sale of condemned navy vessels at Washington yesterday says that probably in the history of the navy there have never been so many accidents from grounding and striking rocks in making harbors as during the past twelve months. Navigators attribute this fact to the order which, doubtless for reasons of economy, has been issued forbidding naval vessels to engage pilots to enter any harbor in the United States. The holes that have been knocked in the bottoms of government vessels during the past summer as a result of the absence of local pilots, in dangerous coasts, have probably cost the government more than competent pilots for a year would have done, and now even the flagship Tennessee is going to the drydock with a hole in it.

Death of S. S. Montague.

A telegram received late last night from Oakland announces the death of S. S. Montague, chief engineer of the Central and Southern Pacific railroads. He died near Shasta, at camp at the end of the track of the California and Oregon road now in course of construction. Deceased was a comparatively young man, being only 51 years of age. He leaves a wife and family living in Oakland. The probabilities are that L. M. Clements, who for some time past has been acting as assistant chief engineer, will succeed to the position. Mr. Clements is acknowledged by railroad men to be one of the most competent engineers in the country.

Counterfeiter Arrested

Detective officers have captured one of the most complete counterfeiting outfits ever seen on the coast and arrested the operator, a young man giving his name as W. H. Upson, but whose real name is supposed to be Penton, from Ohio. The outfit consisted of a drop press, five dollar dies and steel punches. When arrested Upson claimed the machine was a new [illegible] battery of his invention.

COLORED CONVENTION

Meeting of Representatives of the Race at Louisville—A Stormy Session.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 25.—When Fred Douglass at 10 o'clock came into Liederkranz hall to deliver his speech this morning, he found a very large crowd in attendance, many white persons having come to hear his plea for his people. On the stage besides the leading colored men, sat ex-Attorney General James Speed, of Lincoln's cabinet, Gen. [illegible], retired, and a number of other white persons of prominence. Douglass spoke two hours, his speech being logical, often humorous and always interesting. He sketched the history of his race since the war, and of course it was frequently sarcastic and severe on the government as well as incidentally on the republican party. He was listened to with interest and received generous applause. Since the conclusion of his speech the convention has in vain labored to complete its organization. There are too many orators on the floor, and the green temporary chairman, who is presiding while Douglass rests from his efforts, is unable to control them.

LATER.—After nearly four hours of hot wrangling Fred Douglass was brought into the hall amid the wildest enthusiasm of his friends and given the stand. The old man was trembling with excitement, and if he had talked his words would have been hot ones. His presence resulted at the end of four hours, in his election as permanent president. The lateness of the hour prevented the delivery of a lengthy speech, but he took occasion to deny the report that he said if Ben Butler were nominated for president he would sweep the colored vote of the Union. A mere slip of a reporter's pencil had nearly cost him the support of his dearest friends. Adjourned.

A LIVELY SQUABBLE

In the full afternoon the motion Dr. B[illegible] and attempted to speak. The chair declined to recognize him. Strong objections were made by delegates to his speaking and he finally subsided.

Armstrong vigorously denounced Bland, and said if he was a true greenbacker he would withdraw. The convention's approval was manifested in a general uproar.

A motion was made that Bland be given ten minutes at the leisure of the convention to explain himself. A dozen delegates here tried to get the floor and many shouted "Question!" at the top of their voices. Davis screamed: "Mr. Chairman, five minutes!" but the chair would not recognize him. The utmost confusion prevailed. Members shouted "Sit down!" "Police!" etc.

Fitchman said the convention would be painted by the opposition press in unprecedentedly vivid colors. "Let em paint," shouted a delegate. A hat was then passed around and $39.80 collected.

A delegate moved that General Butler be nominated by acclamation, but was not recognized.

Fitchman moved the present state committee be empowered to act till the next convention. Without putting this motion, Butler's nomination was renewed and carried unanimously and with great enthusiasm.

THE RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

Resolutions were then read. The preamble denounces both the republican and democratic parties, especially the former. The platform demands repeal of all class laws, no subsidies for corporations, equal political rights for men and women, election of public officials as far as practicable by direct vote of the people, graduated income tax and taxation of all other property in equal ratio, no more refunding of the public debt when the government has money to pay it, demonetization of gold and silver as a legal tender currency and issue instead of a full legal tender paper currency, withdrawal of the power of its issue from national banks, removal of the tariff from treaty-making power; prison labor should not be allowed to cheapen honest labor; suffrage shall be free to all; larger appropriations for common schools; shorter hours of labor, and regulation of internal commerce by congress so that middlemen cannot raise prices; prohibition of the employment of children under 14 in mines and workshops, and equal pay for equal work by men or women.

The platform closes with an extreme eulogy of Butler. Great applause followed the reading and the resolutions were adopted.

THE TICKET NOMINATED

General Butler was unanimously nominated for governor.

The remainder of the ticket nominated is as follows: Lieutenant governor, John Howe; secretary of state, Nicholas Furlong; attorney general, George Fogg; treasurer, Wilbur F. Whitney; auditor, A. H. Wood.

Objection was made that Fogg was not a lawyer, but a delegate said in Butler's state they had all the law necessary, and it made no matter who was attorney general. The ticket was adopted unanimously. The state committee was authorized to fill any vacancies by well known greenbackers. After some speeches, the convention adjourned.

A supplementary call for a national greenback convention at Worcester October 16 will be issued. It is signed by all the candidates for lieutenant governor of the greenback party since 1878. Mr. Arnold, who received 106,000 votes on Governor Butler's ticket in 1878, is chairman of the committee and other members of the committee are prominent workers. Howe, unanimously nominated by the convention to-day for lieutenant governor, declines. The Worcester national committee will recognize only delegates of the Worcester convention in its selection for a presidential candidate in 1884. The call of the convention to-day recognized 60,000 voters who voted for Boston and [illegible] as having the right to send delegates to the convention.

FRED DOUGLASS' SPEECH

This was a proud day for Fred Douglass, as he walked down the hall to the president's chair dressed for the occasion, as the white hair of his fine old head streamed in the wind more bravely than ever. [illegible] His step was firm and victory was his. Lawyers, merchants and doctors had assembled to hear the most celebrated colored man in the world. Douglass felt as he had a message to send to his country and sent it in excellent form. He referred briefly to the old days when the specter of slavery lowered over the land and passed to those better and brighter days which brought freedom, education and enfranchisement. After referring to the causes leading to the convention, he said: "Now that we are free we must like freemen take the reins in our own hands and compel the world to receive us as their equal." They had been given platforms, but the words would not suffice. As cart drivers and servants they are received, but when we ask for statesmen and they were to-day an oppressed and abject race. Trades unions refuse him admission, mechanics will hold apprenticeship and when he dies the old hatred follows him. The race line debars him from colleges and professions. They were here to raise the line and make themselves the equal of all. They were in convention to seek a fair trial for colored men and the all outrageous incidents must be stopped. Their business was to organize for their rights and the redress of their wrongs. Continuing, he said: "Some say we should not hold this convention, as it menaces the republican party. Parties are made for men and not men for parties. My hat was made for my head, not my head for my hat. If parties do right stand by them, but when they do not do not uphold them."

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in number less instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.
J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The Rev. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 26 1883.

PARTY AS A MEANS.

It cannot be too often repeated that party should be regarded merely as a means and not at all as an end. It is only as parties are made to understand this that they can be really worthy of support. The citizen should desire the success of his party, not merely to keep his party in the ascendant, but because he thinks it will be good for the country, and consequently when his party is acting upon methods or seeking objects which he cannot think conducive to the public welfare, he ought not to wish it to succeed. Yet the exhortation always is vote the regular ticket, save the country from the pit into which the opposite party is preparing to plunge it; sink minor differences, and go in for party success. Yet these "minor differences" often include objections to a scheme of party management under which no party should be permitted to succeed. The name of party success is nothing, unless the methods and objects of party action are such as can be approved.

The doctrine of submission in all circumstances to party action is a doctrine which strengthens the hands of designing and unscrupulous managers, multiplies the power of the machine indefinitely, and paralyzes the very elements in a party which are healthy and vigorous, and on which its usefulness necessarily and always depends. If the politicians who make it their business to control the organization of a party by any means which they can command can only get the great body of the party to accede to the doctrine that regularity in nominations is all that is needed to secure support, their work will be very much simplified. It is not strange that they should teach this idea and that all their organs should aid them. Grant them this cardinal principle and they will yield the utmost liberty of discussion that can be asked for in the intervals of elections. They do not like liberty of discussion, but they will tolerate it so long as it does not interfere with the votes. Only turn over to them the key to the party conscience, or, what is the same thing, the conscience of the individual member of the party, and let them hold it from the adjournment of the nominating conventions to the evening of election and they will get on very well. Nothing is so important and so precious to them as "harmony" after they have set up their machine and are waiting until election to see it supplied with motive power.

This view of party organization ignores the fact that party success is not in itself an end at all, but only a means. It ignores the history of every great party, and particularly of that to which the federal administration at present professes to belong. A party is simply a combination of men in a free community to carry out certain defined purposes through the possession of the legislative and executive office. Of course, when it comes to a test of strength between such combinations, seeking different purposes, the one in which the greatest harmony prevails stands the best chance of winning, other things being equal. But whether the members of a party are called on to continue in co-operation with it depends not on the fact that they have previously acted in its ranks, but upon several conditions. Among these the very first is that the party shall continue to carry out the purposes for which it was organized. A party which fails to do that loses all claim to support. Next to this the most important condition is that the rights of the members of the party shall be observed, that there shall be freedom of speech and action, and a fair and honest organization. If there be not, there can be no just claim to support. There is no perpetual allegiance to a party. The pretense that there should be is un-American, opposed to the principles of a free government, tyrannical and absurd. To yield to such a pretense, to give up the right of saying whether a voluntary association, formed for certain ends, is carrying them out in a way to command respect, is weak and childish. It is understood that there must always be compromise and accommodation in any associated body of men. Each one cannot have his own way. But in a political association it is always the right and the duty of the individual to decide what sacrifices are really required for the end in view, and where they shall cease.

Since this is unquestionably the just and proper view of the party relation, there is no time so well adapted for its application as during the campaign and on the day of election with which it closes. This is the time when the principle can be practically enforced, and when its results will have the greatest influence upon the minds and the action of those who are opposed to it. The thing which is feared by the men who make a trade of politics, and who are constantly presenting the party with the narrow alternative of supporting them or defeating "the cause," is an independent vote, a vote cast deliberately and intelligently for the purpose of bringing about a definite result and not blindly for the party candidate without reference to results.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The first hint we have of the common school, the most characteristic institution of this country, is in the records of the town of Boston, five years after the first settlers established themselves on the peninsula which is now covered by the city of that name. In the records of that year, 1635, there is the following entry: "That our brother Philemon Pormont shall be entreated to become school master for the teaching and nurturing of children with us," and thirty acres of land are set off as compensation. It was the intention of the founders of the common school that something like our present system of graded schools in which the higher education can be obtained should be established. This was a necessary part of the organization of society which was introduced in New England. The township was the unit. Every six miles square of the habitable portion of the country was intended to be a little state by itself, complete in itself, having a religious and a business center, capable of supplying all the necessities of its inhabitants, and giving to every child born within its limits an opportunity to gain an education, so that without going outside the town he might become the heir of all that was good in the past. This was a noble conception of society, the best that was ever imagined. It was not entirely original with New England men, but like certain literary traits, it had leaped over several generations in its descent from the old Angles in the north of Germany who had their tun and their tun meetings. In accordance with this conception, we find that the Massachusetts general court enacted a law in 1647 providing that in each town a school should be kept, where reading and writing should be taught, and that every town of one hundred families should maintain a school in which boys could be prepared for college. Like provisions were made in Connecticut and New Hampshire in 1616 and 1672.

This was the origin and the original idea of the common school. Its importance to this country can never be estimated. As several of the speakers at the recent railroad celebration said the common school is of more value than railroads, more value than anything else in our American system. It is especially valuable as a social reagent to fuse into one homogeneous mass the many elements of population that come to these shores. And as we remarked a few days ago it is of great importance that the children of all nationalities should be instructed in these common schools in the English language. By this means we shall be preserved in our unity and fulfill the high expectations which have been formed of our future by the lovers of freedom in other lands. "The possible destiny of the United States of America, as a nation of a hundred millions of freemen, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, living under the laws of Alfred, and speaking the language of Shakespeare and Milton is an august conception." We have not yet a hundred millions of people, and so do not quite fill this conception of Coleridge. But we already stretch from ocean to ocean, the widest range of a homogeneous people in the world. So long as the common school is maintained and made effective we may welcome the coming of the balance of the hundred millions without apprehension.

But is it essential to the complete efficiency of the common school that the emphasis should be placed upon the instruction which the majority of the children receive. The age of 14 is approximately that at which the great body of pupils in our public schools both in city and country cease to attend regularly, and it is to the instruction of children within that age, therefore, that the public money should be principally devoted. It is the opinion of many that expenditure might properly be limited to the education of that class. There is no necessity for making such a radical change in the public school system now. But there is in many places a demand for some change in the system which now tends to the neglect of this class and expends the public funds principally upon the tuition of the higher grades of scholars. In the city of Brooklyn the superintendent of public instruction in his annual report, says that the duty of providing the best practicable education for all children entitled to what is known as primary instruction is sadly neglected. The accommodations for primary scholars are insufficient, the number of teachers is too small, and the instruction is inferior. "Were the necessary accommodations provided," he says, "there would doubtless be a much larger number of children in attendance between the ages of five and eight, and their school life would thereby be extended from one to three years." What the public school system should give to all the younger children, without exception, is very fairly described by Mr Patterson, and it is what The Oregonian has insisted upon with reference to our schools. "The requirements of modern life," he says, "demand that a boy twelve years old shall be able to write a fair hand and indite a creditable letter, he must be able to make out a bill, spell correctly, read intelligently and speak and write with reasonable accuracy and clearness, and he must not only possess a fair knowledge of arithmetic but be able to perform its operations with rapidity and precision."

This is what the public schools should seek first to do, and let the graduation of finished scholars from the high school be a secondary consideration. The higher departments need not be given up. But it should occupy the same relative proportion in the system that it occupied in the early history of New England. The best possible instruction should be given to those children who have no other chance for schooling and whose time is necessarily limited. They should have the best teachers, teachers who can stimulate their brains with new ideas and enable them to make the best use of their limited opportunity for instruction. To place the emphasis upon the higher departments is an injustice to this class which cannot be tolerated long without peril to the permanency of the system.

President Porter of Yale college has written an article for one of the reviews in defense of the study of the classics and says among other things that the reading of classical authors has a peculiarly soothing restful tendency in this feverish hurried and bustling age. This of itself would hardly pay the expense of acquiring a knowledge of Latin and Greek, for the English poets and writers can furnish reading that is sufficiently devoid of excitement. And then being a preacher Dr Porter ought to know that many sermons have a very restful and tranquilizing effect in this hurried age, though this is a point on which preachers are very apt to be sensitive. A distinguished German professor preached to an audience of one man, and drew his salary regularly from the government with apparent satisfaction until he observed that his audience was accustomed to sleep during the service. He then hired a boy to attend the service and sit beside his audience and keep it awake. This worked well for two or three Sundays until the professor saw that the boy neglected his duty and let the audience sleep. Then the boy was called to account and it was discovered that the audience paid the boy twice as much as the preacher to let it sleep. Then the professor went to this man and remonstrated with him, and said it was very annoying to a preacher to have his audience sleep during the sermon. The man replied "I do not go to church to hear you preach. I only go because it is a good, quiet place to sleep." We have never heard of but one clergyman who was frank enough to admit that that was a proper motive for attending church. This minister prayed at the opening of the service that his audience might enjoy a season of intellectual repose and there was nothing in his sermon inconsistent with his prayer.

No mention has been made, we believe, of one of the very earliest suggestions of the Northern Pacific railroad which is of interest to the people of this state because of the reason for which it was made. In the debates in the United States senate on the Oregon question in 1842 Mr Sevier, senator from Arkansas said the claim of the United States being admitted, there should be no delay in taking possession, for which the only means were to provide an adequate amount of population within the shortest time. Not only should lands be granted to them, he said, and forts be built and garrisoned for their protection but if necessary a railroad should be built from the Missouri to the Columbia which he contended might be done for two million dollars over which "emigrants might be conveyed in two or three days." The railroad was not then built. Emigrants were six months instead of two or three days in coming here, and there must be great improvements in railroading before the sanguine expectations of Senator Sevier could be realized.

An interesting theory in relation to the salmon supply question is put forth by an Astoria gentleman, who has given the matter much attention. He is of the opinion that every cannery on the river is in effect a propagating establishment and accounts for the extraordinary run of the past season on this theory. The first operation in the canneries he argues is to relieve the fish of their entrails, fins, heads and spawn and these in almost every instance are dropped directly into the river. Much of the spawn of course is eaten by fish or destroyed but a goodly share he thinks finds lodgment on the bottom where in the natural process it hatches. It is a fact well known that the water about the canneries fairly swarms with young fish during the summer and fall. It has generally been supposed where the matter has received attention at all that these shoals were attracted by offal but it may easily be believed that they are hatched from the offal itself. The theory is worth consideration as a novelty if for no other reason.

It is reported that the party of the first part Besser (by the grace of Chapman mayor by the grace of Besser), clerk of police, says that the party of the second part, Chapman, as aforesaid, signed the agreement of robbery and barter, hereinbefore mentioned without due and proper examination or knowledge of its contents. Of course there will be no hesitation on the part of the public to accept Mr Besser's explanation.

"Yes sir," said a sturdy granger of Yamhill in the court room at Lafayette yesterday. "I would rather be in the chair of that poor wretch (Smith on trial for the murder of Mrs Petch) than in the boots of your mayor." "And," he added, "what are the citizens of Portland going to do about it?" What?

THE MAYOR'S SALARY

Last October when the bill to amend the charter of this city so as to pay a salary to the mayor was before the legislature, The Oregonian, opposing the proposition, said that if such salary were paid the position would probably become attractive to a class of persons who would be no credit to the city. It added sundry other observations which it considers timely to reproduce now in view of recent revelations which have shown that the man who is now mayor of the city sought the office in expectation of the salary to be provided and of a share in the corruptions of city administration. We quote:

It cannot be supposed that by paying a salary we should get a better sort of man to administer and control the affairs of this city. The best mayors whom Portland has ever had have been men whom the salary now proposed would never induce to accept the office, and yet the office with the salary pertaining to it would be sought more hotly than ever. The city would pay its money and would not get better government, probably not so good. But it will be asked why should you have the man [illegible] serve the city for nothing? Experience has shown that the city has not been obliged to ask for the service. Men have thrust themselves upon it who to those whom it would be necessary to ask are as sensible men whom the salary would not bring to the [illegible]. The city therefore need not pay at this stage of its growth and history large sums for service which it can have without this expenditure and at least as good service as it would be likely to get for the money.

The result proves the correctness of these views. The first mayor to receive a salary is also the first one who has disgraced himself and the city.

The mayor party of the second part continues modestly, to blush unseen. An indignant public is waiting impatiently to hear what he has to offer. His resignation would be the most fitting and acceptable thing, but as a gentleman of honor doubtless he will regard his obligation to Mr Besser, the party of the first part as a previous and binding engagement. As Mr Besser's man, naturally Mr Besser's wrath, not that of the people, should have authority with him.

The case of Smith, charged with the murder of Mrs Petch is on trial at Lafayette. Local interest in Yamhill county is intense, almost to the point of excitement, while the atrocity of the crime, the fact that its victim was a woman and the mysterious conduct and the peculiar capture of the defendant are circumstances which give interest to the case even where the parties are unknown. The trial will be reported fully to The Oregonian by telegraph from day to day.

When Dr Chapman was a candidate he published a statement to the effect that if elected he would not make Besser chief of police. Good reason. He was already under contract with Besser to make him superintendent of streets for which the latter was to get the money to buy Chapman's nomination and election and to pay him during his term as mayor $1000 a year.

It would be well if Mayor Chapman, party of the second part, had the help of a certain ex statesman in preparing an "account of his stewardship." Long experience in just unpleasant matters is a powerful aid.

Mayor Chapman was before the legislature last year lobbying for a bill to put into his hands $1,000,000 for water, gas, park and city hall. What fine picking it would have been for Besser and himself!

Some say all the city officials whom the present mayor has appointed ought to resign, and perhaps they ought, but that would only give him another chance to put up the offices for sale again.

Some say the mayor will not resign. Is he then of such make up as to be able to rest in infamy and contentment?

CITY.

GOING EAST?—As will be seen by an advertisement in another column, passengers for all points on the rail river and Sound divisions of the O R & N Co and Northern Pacific will start from Ash street dock in future, the transfer boat for the [illegible] express leaving that place daily at 6 15 P M. After this date all freight for points on the Cascades, Willamette and [illegible] routes and the Pacific division [illegible] and Puget sound will be received at Ash street [illegible] so it will be seen that the transfer of the wharf [illegible] freight business to the Ash street [illegible] is now completed. Yesterday a notice was posted in the ticket office there as follows: Soliciting or advertising of any kind will not [illegible] allowed on these premises. So the [illegible] of various eastern routes connecting with the N P who saved Ticket Agent Maxwell so much trouble by explaining routes to [illegible] travelers, folded up their gripsacks and [illegible] to take and give a rest. And now when a [illegible] presents himself to buy a ticket the first thing Mr Maxwell does is to inquire if he is going east. If so the next question is as to what route he wishes to travel from St Paul to Chicago. Of course the intending traveler don't know and it [illegible] to be explained to him that there [illegible] from St Paul to Chicago the Rock Island [illegible] and the Chicago Milwaukee and St Paul, and that the trains all start from the same depot and make the same time and all connect with [illegible] to the east. Then the victim wants Mr Maxwell to select a road for him, saying that he [illegible]. This Mr Maxwell declines to do [illegible] the purchaser then selects the route he [illegible]. The next thing in order is [illegible] out by which route he wishes [illegible] from Chicago to New York, and in [illegible] it is necessary to explain that there [illegible] lines over which he can go—the Penn [illegible], Baltimore & Ohio, Lake Shore & Michigan [illegible], and Michigan Central and Grand Trunk [illegible] of these lines terminate at Buffalo and a [illegible] of many others can be made by [illegible] to reach New York from that [illegible]. The other two take him to New York direct. If he wishes to deviate from [illegible] of these trunk lines to visit any place, he has [illegible] a choice of some a dozen different routes by which he can reach New York or Chicago. Tickets [illegible] of these routes can be procured of Mr Maxwell. It will be seen from this that when a man [illegible] up his mind to go east he had better procure [illegible] and after studying it, make up his mind [illegible] he will travel before he applies for a ticket.

A LAWYER'S SHARP PRACTICE.—On the 13th of [illegible] Wm Mullen was tried in Justice White's [illegible] on a charge of larceny by bailee, brought by [illegible], who claimed a ring upon his finger [illegible] he received as a gift from her. The case was [illegible] and argued before a jury of six [illegible] but when it came to drawing up the form of [illegible] the duty devolved upon the attorney for the [illegible], who substituted the phrase "We find the [illegible] guilty as charged" as the alternative to "[illegible] the defendant not guilty." This was equivalent to "heads I win, tails you lose," so far as the [illegible] is concerned, and, to say the [illegible] savors of irregularity. The jury in [illegible] the former verdict without discovering [illegible], and the prisoner was discharged. Subsequently, however, on the irregularity of the verdict [illegible] made known, the jury was recalled and [illegible] verdict rendered, finding the defendant guilty. The court then imposed a fine of $25, in default of which the defendant was committed to jail. [illegible] upon the first verdict E N Stevens attorney for the defendant yesterday brought suit [illegible] the circuit court for a writ of habeas corpus [illegible] the prisoner. In setting forth his petition [illegible], with an assurance worthy of admiration, [illegible] the writ upon the non committal verdict [illegible] jury, and the alleged irregular procedure [illegible] subsequent thereto. Judge Stott reserved [illegible] upon the petition until this morning [illegible] severe criticism of the attorney's practice [illegible].

[illegible] COMPANY WORKINGS.—The old Portland [illegible] Company are laying a new main, fourteen [illegible] in diameter, along the west side of Third [illegible] putting in hydrants at street corners. [illegible] has been torn up and the great iron pipe [illegible] to Morrison street, and the pipe is [illegible] along the road some distance further to [illegible]. A large force of men are employed [illegible] and it moves forward with great rapidity. [illegible] manner of working is quite interesting [illegible] people linger a few moments by [illegible] ditch during the course of a day remind [illegible] of Tom Hood's moralist who watched the [illegible] in London town. The prospect for a [illegible] supply for Portland is increasing every [illegible]. Work is progressing favorably on the company's new reservoir near the White house and the [illegible] to connect it with the city will be ready [illegible] it is completed. The two huge pumps for [illegible] works are on their way from the east on [illegible] so that in case one is lost the other [illegible] safely to hand. It is expected that the city [illegible] supplied from the company's new works [illegible] next spring.

[illegible] A FARCE OF JUSTICE.—Another case of [illegible] prosecution is reported in the justices courts [illegible] that is apt to bring the administration of [illegible] through these tribunals into contempt and [illegible]. A woman by the name of Johnson living [illegible] the western confines of the city was the other [illegible] struck in the face by a youngster of six or [illegible] summers named Fred Bridges, whom she [illegible] the liberty to correct for some boyish [illegible]. Instead of spanking the lad or informing [illegible] parents, she needs must have him arrested and [illegible] in the courts of the county with assault and [illegible]. At Justice Green's and the police court [illegible] she received no encouragement and was [illegible] to let the boy go. But by persevering a [illegible] was found at last willing to entertain the [illegible], and the arrest was effected. What degree of [illegible] will be inflicted on the defendant if [illegible] guilty may be a subject of speculation. Certainly the state court cannot afford to become an [illegible] in the imprisonment of an infant barely [illegible] for his own actions.

[illegible] OPENINGS IN MILLINERY.—Several of the [illegible] milliners of this city held their fall openings yesterday, and all day long these shops were [illegible] with ladies examining the latest novelties [illegible] ribbons, feathers, etc. From a hasty [illegible] an OREGONIAN reporter came to the conclusion [illegible] broad-brimmed beaver hats were out of date [illegible] that turbans and felt hats are to be the style this [illegible]. Many of the hats have high crowns. Some [illegible] of old-fashioned dove color trimmed in the [illegible] and ornamented with what is probably intended for a dove as it has the right color. Silks, [illegible] velvets and ribbons of gorgeous colors [illegible], among them plenty of yellows in all shades. [illegible] the most gorgeous affairs of all are the birds in [illegible] to adorn the hats and turbans. They are fear[illegible] and wonderfully made and present some start[illegible] revelations in colors and form which would [illegible] an evolutionist. It will be no sin for any [illegible] to adore them for they are like nothing in the [illegible] or on the earth.

[illegible] OF MURDER.—The person arrested on [illegible] of being the murderer of J T Young who [illegible] found dead at the rear of Sayres' saloon at [illegible], opposite Kalama, on Sunday morning proves [illegible] William Delaney, a blacksmith, and not [illegible] as was stated in the special dispatch to THE OREGONIAN. He had a preliminary examination before Justice Whiting at St. Helens yesterday and was discharged. The testimony showed that Young and Delaney had been on a spree together and that on Sunday night they were sleeping on the ground [illegible] the murder was committed. Young got up in the night and went to a tent near by and procured a bottle of whisky and he and Delaney drank [illegible]. After a while Young started out again and Delaney states that he heard some one say "If you [illegible] away I will smash your head," and he [illegible] no more of this matter till he was awakened in the morning by the men who arrested him. Delaney [illegible] as a witness in case the murderer should [illegible].

THE THICKEST FOG IN YEARS.—All day yesterday [illegible] hung over the city that served to remind us of what we experienced before the late rain. Last [illegible] the light breeze that had been stirring [illegible] died down, a dense fog settled over the river [illegible] city which combined with the smoke made [illegible] extremely unpleasant for one to be out on the [illegible]. All river boats will be delayed in their departure this morning, the fog being thicker than at any time in years. At midnight one could easily [illegible] himself on an open plain at night were it [illegible] the occasional sight of a street lamp. The [illegible] headlight reflector upon the Stark street ferry [illegible] failed to pierce the fog and was utterly invisible at a distance of less than half way across the [illegible]. The small boat which usually runs between [illegible] hours of 1 and 5 o'clock A M was tied up this [illegible].

[illegible] GUILTY.—In the state circuit court yesterday [illegible] & Zimmerman brewers charged by the city [illegible] sale of malt liquors without a license were [illegible] by a jury of twelve men after a few minutes [illegible]. The case was appealed from the [illegible] and is one of the first of the liquor [illegible] brought there. A preponderance [illegible] as to the unauthorized sale of the beer [illegible] Zimmerman agent for the firm seems to [illegible] satisfied the jury of the defendants [illegible] and no time was lost in finding a verdict accordingly. This is the first instance of a fair trial on the part of the city and it may be reasonably inferred that the case was essentially without [illegible].

DANGEROUS CARELESSNESS.—Some one has piled a quantity of timber upon a vacant lot on the north side of Washington street between Eighth and [illegible]. Through willful carelessness or stupidity [illegible] stick has been left protruding about three feet [illegible] the side-walk and just high enough to trip up [illegible]. A gentleman who stumbled over it last evening and escaped without breaking his neck [illegible] at this office to suggest that a reporter be stationed near this stick to harvest the crop of frightful accidents sure to take place there. The person who [illegible] that stick protruding in this dangerous manner had better have it removed before he has damages [illegible].

APPEALED.—The case of J B Stevens vs W [illegible] and the Hawthorne heirs, which involves a large amount of property in East Portland, will be appealed by defendants to the supreme court. A transcript of the testimony aggregating between two and three hundred pages is now being prepared by County Clerk Sewall.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—The regular quarterly examination of teachers in the schools of Multnomah county will be held by the county superintendent, O F Paxton, at the Park school building [illegible] o'clock A M on Friday Sept 28. Teachers wishing to be examined must be present promptly at that hour.

Says the Boston Herald of Major Dane: "The audience was brought up with an interesting visit [illegible] and intensity, the battle of Port Hudson was thrillingly described."

PUBLIC SCHOOL REPORT.—The tenth annual report of the common schools of Portland for the year ending June 22 1883 has been laid upon our table by Superintendent T H Crawford. It contains the annual reports of the board of directors, clerk and [illegible] committee, superintendent etc. The superintendent's report for the term ending in July last shows the total of children of school age—4 to 20 years of age—to be 6021, an increase of 707 over the previous year. The total of different children attending school 3483, an increase of 353 over the year previous. There is also a vast amount of statistical matter in this report of great interest to taxpayers. The total receipts from all sources by the school board for the year ending June 30 1883 was $93 [illegible] 90. This includes the sale of Central [illegible] block $76 000. The total expenditures $100 [illegible] 79. In this is included permanent improvements and $30 000 for the purchase of the new high school block, amounting in all to $93 810 90. This leaving net cost of running the schools $16 266 12, and increase of upwards of $10,000 over last year. This pamphlet contains a picture of the Failing and Couch buildings and his plans of their several floors. The new high school building is also fully described. It will indeed be a creditable structure and is estimated to cost when completed $82 000. It is expected that it will be completed so as to be occupied in a year from the commencement of the present school term.

COAL IN OREGON.—James A. Sterling, THE OREGONIAN's agent at Drain's, Douglas county, Oregon, sends a sample of coal from the Mulvany quarry two miles north of that place close to the O & C [illegible]. The coal appears to be of an excellent quality. It is very black and brittle, crumbling under slight pressure but does not seem to [illegible] affected by the air. Neither is it soft and sooty, but when placed in a flame burns easily and brilliantly, generating a [illegible] quantity of gas and consuming itself with but little refuse. Mr Sterling writes that the vein from which this coal was taken [illegible] as the working penetrate the mountain.

WAITING TRIAL.—A Chinese laundryman by the musical name of Sin Sing having been charged in Justice Green's court with the unlawful taking of some linen the property of one McAndrews, was yesterday committed to the county jail to await trial. He was not long in durance vile before he [illegible] for liberty got [illegible] of his cupidity and agency was manifest and willingness to make amends were forthcoming. Accordingly through the consent of the prosecuting attorney and complaining witness the case against him was dismissed on his payment of $6—the value of the linen—and costs of prosecution.

COMPLIMENT TO H D SANBORN.—The American portion of Mr Villard's guests while on their way home made a brief halt at the scene of the last spike driving. Their photographs were taken in a group and they held a meeting, and adopted the following resolution: Resolved, That we are under many and deep obligations to Mr H D Sanborn, representative of the company in charge of our train, and we hereby tender him our sincere thanks and extend to him our best wishes for a long life and a prosperous one. He has been indefatigable in his exertions to anticipate all our wants.

TAKING STOCK.—The present low figures reached by Northern Pacific and Transcontinental stocks has induced a number of our citizens to invest in them. A gentleman stated yesterday that he had scraped up all the money he could raise and invested in Northern Pacific preferred, and if he had been able to raise a million he would have invested it all, although he never put a dollar in stocks before. As evidence of the feeling in this matter, it will be seen that Leahy & Solis advertise to buy and carry a number of stocks for $1[illegible] per share.

WAS CERTAINLY INSANE.—Last night about 11 o'clock officer Watson's attention was called to a strangely acting man who had entered the Cosmopolitan saloon, corner of Alder and First streets, and attempted to turn out the lights at the same time intimating it was time to close up for the night. He was marched off to the police station where he gave his name as Charles Worthington, which was duly recorded in the register and according to the saloon proprietor's way of thinking the word insane very properly written after it.

REASON OVERTHROWN.—John Macnamara, formerly a rockman here and known as John Mack, and who has been residing in Washington county for several years, has been adjudged insane by the county court of that county and was yesterday committed to the asylum. He has been subject to fits for some time, which gradually grew more frequent and severe and finally resulted in the overthrow of his reason. He has been a terror to his neighbors for some time, being a powerful man, and it was finally concluded to have him sent to the asylum.

CARPENTERS' QUARREL.—Two carpenters named respectively Burke and Love had a quarrel the other morning while at work. They never did agree very well and when Love happened to get in Burke's way he would not move when asked. Thereupon Burke struck him in the face and then Love struck Burke on the back of the head with a steel square, cutting a gash about two inches long. Each then swore out a warrant and had the other arrested upon a charge of assault and battery, and Justice White will undoubtedly administer fines in both cases.

CONTRACTS LET.—The contract for the improvement of Lincoln street by grading, laying sidewalks, etc. from Front street to the western boundary of Lincoln street was awarded yesterday to James [illegible] and the firm of Aspland & Dill. The contract calls for the removal of 1480 cubic yards of earth and a fill of 600 yards. The price paid per yard is twenty two cents. The contract for lettering the streets was also awarded Frank & Company. For the sign-[illegible] the firm is allowed ten cents and for glass fitted [illegible] cents each.

CRYSTAL SPRINGS.—The new water company has chosen an appropriate name, as the stream from which they propose to take their supply issues from a series of springs and carries a volume of splendid clear cold water amply abundant to supply a much larger city than Portland now is. Of course it will cost a large sum of money to introduce this water into this city, but no one who has ever seen the stream can have any objection to having the water from it supplied here in Portland.

AN OLD LAND MARK.—The American Exchange building, corner of Front and Jefferson streets, is about to emerge, Phœnix like, from the embers of its last fire. An additional story has been added to the building and the interior renovated. When finished it will be leased as a hotel under the old familiar name. The building has had an eventful history. It was built in 1850 and notwithstanding remarkable ordeals by fire is destined to be a feature of the city for some time to come.

PLEADS GUILTY.—Wm Davis, a sailor implicated in the robbery of Frank Hastings yesterday morning, in the state circuit court signified his desire to withdraw his plea of not guilty to the indictment and enter one of guilty to petit larceny. The plea was allowed by the prosecuting attorney with the purpose of furthering the man's avowed intention of leaving the country by ship. A sentence of $15 fine, covering the costs of the prosecution, was imposed and the man allowed to depart.

ARGUMENT ON THE INJUNCTION.—The preliminary injunction asked of Judge Stott by M A Hackett restraining the Multnomah Railway Company from interfering with the Albina ferry as now established was not argued yesterday according to appointment. An attorney for the railway company having given notice that an answer to the injunction would be filed in the afternoon, argument was postponed until this morning when the case will be discussed in all its bearings.

CHINESE TAXPAYERS.—The Chinese of this city have accumulated considerable property during the past few years, and are rapidly increasing their possessions. The taxable property is held by a large number of firms and individuals, the largest holders being Lou's Park et al with $19 500 and Dew Yick Company with $11 5[illegible]. The total value of taxable property owned by Chinese is $145,2[illegible].

To-night Dundreary will be repeated for the last time. To-morrow night "Lost Astray" will be the attraction, as well as at the matinee on Saturday. THE PETCH MURDER.

Trial of George W. Smith in Progress at Lafayette.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES BEGUN

History of the Atrocious Crime—Testimony of Yesterday in Full—Notes of the Trial

On the 17th of August 1882 Mrs Mary Petch, the wife of a well known farmer and sawmill proprietor of western Yamhill county, while passing along the public road near her home in a wagon with her stepson was shot from behind and killed. The assassin who fired from cover was not seen, but examination shortly after the murder discovered his place of hiding while in wait for his victim. The circumstances with few exceptions pointed to G W Smith as the murderer. Smith had been absent for some time before the murder and various statements concerning threats he should have made were in circulation. The coroner had a hasty inquest, which proving unsatisfactory a second inquest was held, good counsel was employed and a number of competent physicians were employed to hold a post mortem examination. Several new facts were ascertained but nothing to change the current of testimony against Smith, and after investigating the case for several days the coroner's jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the shooting was done by G W Smith, who was accordingly indicted by the grand jury at the next regular term of the circuit court. Meanwhile every possible effort had been made to arrest and apprehend Smith, without any apparent trace of his whereabouts, and the hopes of his arrest were almost abandoned when only a few weeks ago and just a year after the murder he fell into the hands of the hunters and was taken to jail at Lafayette.

SMITH'S TRIAL.

LAFAYETTE, Sept 25.

Interest in the trial of George W Smith, charged with the murder of Mrs Petch, is very great, and the town is full of people who have come from far and near to witness the trial. The grand jury was drawn yesterday and instructed and seven cases were disposed of. Finally the judge read "State of Oregon vs George W Smith." This brought the audience in the court room to attention. The sheriff retired, returning in a few minutes with the prisoner, and soon the room was filled with an eagerly interested crowd. The prisoner entered looking a little bleached from his few weeks confinement. He wore a checked flannel shirt, dark pants and vest, and he is about five feet eight inches high and looks to be 40 years of age, grey eyes, black hair slightly grey, whiskers short, à la Burnside. He took a seat between his attorneys Fenton and Daly and seemed to watch closely the proceedings. When required to stand up and give his Christian name he said in a clear distinct voice "George W." then paid strict attention as Prosecuting Attorney Holmes read the indictment.

The attorneys then had a sharp discussion respecting some letters of interested parties that were to be admitted as evidence. This discussion showed plainly that every inch of ground is to be hotly contested and excellent sparring is looked for, as McCain for the state, and Daly for the defense, two skilled and unsparing skirmishers, are expected to cross swords more than once. District Attorney Holmes assisted by Mr McCain and Judge Hurley will appear for the state. Hon W D Fenton, N L Butler and J J Daly are conducting the defense. On the adjournment of court the prisoner shook hands with several of his old neighbors who were present and then was returned to jail.

The prisoner entered this morning with his counsel Daly and Butler and took a seat inside the bar, wearing a coat, having appeared yesterday in his shirt sleeves. The court was called at 9 A M and a plea of not guilty was entered. Jurymen as follows were called:

S J Dunn questioned at length by Fenton—Born in Nova Scotia, a farmer, had read no state papers, knows nothing of the case, [illegible] years old. Accepted by defense. Questioned by Holmes—Not opposed to capital punishment. Accepted.

By prosecution—Had read account in THE OREGONIAN; not opposed to capital punishment; accepted. Juror asked to be excused for the reason that he did not understand the English language sufficiently; excused by court.

James Galloway by defense—Lives near Wheatland since 1872; prisoner worked for him five or six days four or five years ago; relations were friendly; accepted. By prosecution—Prisoner preceded his family to this country; had read account of tragedy in THE OREGONIAN; not opposed to capital punishment; accepted.

P M Scroggins by defense—Lives near Sheridan, a farmer; accepted. By prosecution—Not opposed to capital punishment; excused.

Afternoon Session

LAFAYETTE via MCMINNVILLE, Sept 25.—[Special.]—Robert Addison, James Megridge, James Carter and J W James were accepted as the remaining jurors. Thirty one were called altogether. In the afternoon the court room was crowded. Judge Hurley opened for the prosecution, stating the circumstances of the murder in a clear and comprehensive speech and was followed by Hon N L Butler, who stated the grounds of defense forcibly and with emphasis.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES

Joseph Petch testified—Stepson of deceased; six months after prisoner settled in neighborhood trouble began about land claimed by prisoner; one year later deceased obtained papers from Kansas showing that prisoner's homestead right was forfeited in Tillamook, which deceased was [illegible]; at the first time July 11 1882; August 17th went from home to North Yamhill after deceased in a lumber wagon and returning drove on to a bridge when a plank was disturbed; whipped the horses over and when thirty feet beyond the bridge heard a shot, saw that deceased was hurt and was falling out of the wagon, and caught her clothing; she fell under the hind wheel of the wagon; I stopped the team and got out, heard a second shot and exclaimed "murder"; returning to deceased I heard a third shot; team was frightened and I went and tied them to a tree, returning to deceased. The hat and bloody clothing of deceased was shown and recognized. [Sensation. Husband of deceased left the court room crying. The witness was composed.]

An hour and a half was occupied by the prosecution.

Questioned by defense—Prisoner worked for Petch during the fall and winter of 1878; trouble began in May following. A lengthy recital of all the trouble and the murder consuming an hour and a half followed. The attorneys say he is a good witness.

Aaron Frazier testified to seeing and handling the deceased after the shooting and examining the scene of the tragedy, made measurements, [illegible] found a cartridge and handed it to him.

DIED

The following from a Lancaster Pa paper will be of melancholy interest to many in this city:

In Lancaster Sunday September [illegible] 1883 at the age of 1 year and 18 days, Harry Cliff, the son and only [illegible] of Rev Jamie [illegible] and Mrs Gertrude [illegible] Eaton, missionaries of the A B C F M, in Chihuahua, Mexico.

Mr and Mrs Eaton left Mexico on Monday last, reaching their parents' home here on Friday morning. Their child had been ill for several months, requiring their constant care. At length all the resources at hand seemed to be exhausted and by advice of physicians they decided to attempt the journey north, hoping that the change to a cooler and pure climate might yet save the life of the little one. But it was too late to benefit the child, and on Monday afternoon at sunset his body was laid to rest on the brow of the hill in our beautiful cemetery, the simple services being conducted by his grandfather Rev Dr Eaton and his great grandfather Rev James Demarest. Mr and Mrs Eaton will return shortly to Mexico.

THE POWELL'S VALLEY FIRE

Sufferings of Humanity and Loss of Property—Pitiable Plight of a Widow Left Destitute by the Ravages of the Flames

The fire in Powell's valley is the principal topic of conversation in East Portland, as most of the inhabitants are more or less known in that vicinity. The ravages of the fire, the loss and suffering, are variously spoken of, and it is impossible at present to gather correct details or estimate the loss. This, however, will be very heavy, and will fall principally on frugal but uninsured farmers, the destruction of whose property will deprive them of the fruits of years of industry and set them back again to the starting point.

The most pitiable case heard from is that of Mrs Dresel, a widow, residing on the east side of the [illegible] family, who is deprived of her own efforts for a livelihood, and who is left destitute by the ravages of the fire, her home, barn, etc., being entirely destroyed. Neighbors less unfortunate than her have volunteered to assist her, and persons residing in the city will also be given an opportunity to afford her relief.

Among other losses are the following: On the Douglas place, house, barn and fence; Jack Amberson, house, barn, chicken house and fence; John Menete, house, barn and fence; Zach Fitzgerald house, barn, feed and fence; Dan Welch, barn, feed and fence; also the White school house near the camp ground. In the vicinity of Rooster Rock all houses are burned except six. The fire is still burning, but owing to there being little or no wind to blow it, making little headway, but of course this fortunate caprice of the weather cannot be depended on.

The above particulars are learned from Wm New, who owns a ranch in Powell's valley, and who arrived in the city last evening from the burnt and burning district. He was more fortunate than the majority of his neighbors, having only lost his fence by the devouring element.

THE OÑA ASHORE.

She Attempts to Enter Yaquina Bay in a Fog and Runs Aground

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

NEWPORT, Sept 25—[illegible] M—The steamer Oña went ashore on the middle ground this morning. The [illegible] and smoke for several days has been very thick and the steamer was running short of fuel. The captain becoming afraid of southerly weather, tried to get in but missed the channel. The government tug has taken her crew off. Water in the hold was three feet deep. There is some hope of getting her off at high water as the water is smooth.

SECOND DISPATCH

7 15 P M.—The steamer went ashore about 9 A M. She was inside the bar, but owing to a dense fog that drifted by she lost her course with the above results. Her cargo is of bacon and hardware. She has drifted to the south beach and is lying easy. The government tug has hold of her and it is likely will get her off to-night.

THE EAST SIDE.

RUN OVER BY A WAGON

A wood-hauler named Dwyer, while descending the hill at Mount Tabor, Monday evening, with a loaded wagon fell from his seat to the roadway, both wheels of the wagon on the side he fell passing over his chest. He was conveyed to the residence of Mr Rathborn, near by, and a physician summoned, but at the latest accounts little hopes was entertained of his recovery

SCHOOL OPENING

The public schools of district No 21 reopened Monday morning with an increased attendance The number enrolled at the Central school was 564, and at Stephens' addition school 125, making a total of 689 This is an increase of 125 over the number enrolled last year The corps of teachers has also been increased two, being thirteen as against eleven last year, but this number is found insufficient, and it will be necessary to add one more to the list. Nothing was done on Monday beyond organization, which occupied principal and teachers till noon, when schools were dismissed for the day The trouble proper commenced yesterday but the pupils were lightly dealt with for the first day being dismissed at 2 o'clock to "give place to a teachers' meeting, which occurred at that time Prof Starr, the principal appears to be "the right man in the right place," being both thorough and earnest.

STREET REPAIRS AND OBSTRUCTIONS

As under the new ordinance, defining his duties, the street commissioner is required to have an office in the council chamber, at which he is to be present at stated hours every day for the purpose of receiving applications and granting special permits for the repair and obstruction of streets and matters pertaining thereto this officer has fixed his office hours at the council chamber from 8 to 9 A M and 4 to 5 P M Between those hours his office will be on the street, and after 7 P M at his residence on Seventh and G streets

THE MARSHAL SURRENDERS

The marshal rounded up six head of stray horses on Sunday—a good haul for one day They were shortly after claimed by M. Dunn, of the brick yard who paid their fines and had them released He was not so successful, financially speaking, with a cow he recently impounded After keeping and feeding it for several days, it was claimed by a poor lorn widow, whose pitiful and tearful entreaties for the release of her imprisoned milk manufacturer, upon whom she partly depended for subsistence, melted the heart of the marshal, causing him to surrender unconditionally

DISCOMFITED AND AVENGED

An involuntary circus was created Monday morning among the workmen engaged in grading Tenth street, between I and J, consequent upon disturbing a yellow jackets' nest by tearing up a portion of the sidewalk. The men shot from the point of divergence like sparks from an anvil and about as quickly Mr. Teighimier, the contractor, did not stop till he collided with the Odd Fellows building, on the opposite side of J street, bringing up with the exclamation ' Mein Gott im Himmel ! ' and proceeding to divest himself of his outer clothing in order to exterminate the varmints In course of time, however the men gradually and cautiously approached from their several safe distances and succeeded in building a huge bonfire in the camp of the enemy, before which they fled, and peace again reigned in Warsaw and work resumed without further interruption

Mr Teighimier, who was thus severely handled by the yellow jacket brigade, was gratified later in the day by taking revenge upon a blue jacket, other wise a Chinaman. It appears a heathen had rented a piece of his on I street, and a fellow heathen doing business as a merchant on Front street, near Washington, in Portland, had gone security for the payment of the rent. The renter vamoosed the other day leaving the rent unpaid, and the rente called upon Mr. Security to redeem his pledge He refusing, resulted in his being called upon later by a constable with a writ of attachment, and now the heathen is minus several sacks of rice, which are being held in the relentless grasp of the law The heathen swore a blue streak of Mongolian maledictions at this turn of affairs, and threatened dire vengeance if his merchandise was not returned At latest accounts he was still swearing He will be given a chance to continue it shortly in the justice court

ALBINA.

Immense Structures that are Being Erected for the Workshops.

Mr Frederick K Arnold, secretary, in his annual report to the board of trade, gives the following resume of the buildings now going up at Albina for workshops for the Northern Pacific railroad, the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company and the Oregon and California railroad, as well as the great wheat elevator and the dry dock If such improvements were in progress at any of the wonderful harbors on Puget sound, the able journalists of those ambitious cities would, no doubt, with each returning day, give a column describing their mammoth proportions

GRAIN ELEVATOR AND OTHER RAILROAD IMPROVEMENTS AT ALBINA

I mentioned last year in a general way the contemplated establishment of various terminal facilities in the suburbs of Albina

The construction of the great grain elevator is about to begin some of the material having already been purchased

Its capacity will be one and a half million of bushels and it will be adapted to the storage of grain in bulk and for its rapid handling either in bulk or in bags

The construction and repair shops for the use of the different roads are now well under way and when completed will compare favorably with any railroad shops in the union

They are projected upon a gigantic scale There is now in course of construction an engine house circular in form, with stalls for forty four locomotives Its diameter is 316 feet and in the center there will be an iron turn table fifty six feet in diameter The machine shop will be 124x464 feet with a capacity for repairing twenty one engines at a time The foundry will be 60x260 feet pattern storehouse 40x60 feet, two stories high the boiler shop, 80x230 feet blacksmith and hammer shop 80x230 feet coppershop, 60x108 feet The car erecting and repairing shop will be 130x464 feet and will be used for the building, repairing and painting of the various kinds of cars in use upon the several railroads The wood working shop will be 80x280 feet, two stories high dry kilns, 70x80 feet storehouse and offices, 60x300 feet, two stories high, oil house, 40x60 feet, with cellars, and having a storage capacity of 120 000 gallons

There will be a sand house 20x60 feet and for houses, sheds etc., in addition.

The motive power for all of the above shops will be furnished by a boiler and engine house [illegible] feet, entirely detached from the other buildings It will contain ten large boilers and two engines of the Corliss type, of 150 horse power each The shops will all be built of brick or stone, and will be made as nearly fire-proof as possible

There will be steam connections from the boilers to the machine and boiler shops so that boilers may be tested either by steam or hydraulic pressure without the necessity of firing up A large transfer table running in pits will be provided by which means a disabled engine may be moved bodily to any point desired.

Water connections will be made throughout all the buildings and every precaution against fire will be observed it being a contemplation to establish an efficient special fire department immediately upon completion of the shops

THE FIRE HYDRANT SYSTEM

An Answer to "Fair Play"

PORTLAND, Sept 24 1883

To the EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

While the Portland Hydraulic Elevator Company expects and desires investigation and criticism it can not allow itself, or those who support its proposed system of fire hydrants to be so represented or rather misrepresented, as is done by "Fair Play" in this morning's OREGONIAN The gentleman who wrote the article must have done so to show that he could write when he wished to with his eyes shut and without thinking of the subject

Briefly stated the Elevator Company propose to amply protect from fire for ten years all that part of the city between Yamhill and G streets and from the west side of Second street to the Willamette river For this protection it asks the city to pay the sum of $500 per month neither more nor less There are no incidentals to be paid for by the city,—all that is to be done by the Elevator Company

"Fair Play" first complains that the very high rate of insurance now charged on Front and First street is to be lowered if this system of hydrants is adopted. Did it occur to him that the rates are high because the present protection is insufficient? That the insurance companies charge according to established rates based on the risk assumed? and that a citizen is as much entitled to protection on insurance as on his property? It certainly requires no argument to show the absurdity of his position

Another complaint is that the district protected comprises one twenty fifth part of the city and that the acceptance of the Elevator company's proposition by the city would be special legislation Is it not true that charters are given to cities for the express purpose of allowing them to legislate specially? The general law is too general Are not lamp posts and policemen placed on every corner in the heart of the city by special legislation? Are not the fire limits the most special legislation? compelling property owners in the districts named above, to build of brick or stone for the protection and prosperity of the whole city Is it not the most special of special legislation to compel the property owners of Front and First streets to construct the most costly pavements at their own expense, which the general public wears out for its profit and amusement? Let "Fair Play" ascertain what it has cost these same property owners the past fifteen years for the two Nicholson pavements worn out and the present Belgian block pavement now on Front and First streets And is that not too special legislation which has placed three out of the four steam engines and those three the newest and most powerful of the paid fire department within a distance of six blocks, from Morrison to Pine streets? Should a house catch fire west of Tenth or in Couch's addition or south of Jefferson street in the city proper, how much chance would such a house have from being totally destroyed The present locations of the steam engines is not only special legislation, but unfair legislation The elevator company proposes to protect the heart of the city so that the engines at present in use may be sent to take care of the extremities

As to the district thus protected by hydrants being in area only one twenty fifth of the city do not the owners of that twenty fifth pay nearly one half of the whole city taxes? Every man woman and child in the city of Portland is interested either directly or indirectly in the prosperity and well being of this small district Portland is a commercial not a manufacturing city Wipe out its business houses and you have no longer a city but a village A fire burning north instead of south as it did in 1873 would bring want instead of plenty and the owners of property in the remotest suburbs of the city would see it shrink in value to that of half its present worth "Fair Play" should remember also that the signers of the petition do not live in the district and that they pay taxes on some of the most valuable of residence property

Further he says If it (paid fire department) has not appliances enough let the city get more The following figures are taken from the official records Total cost of paid fire department from Jan. 1 1883 to August 31 1883 being eight months is $23 1[illegible] deducting from this $[illegible] the amount required to equip it as a paid department and including the amount paid the Portland Water Company and we have a balance of $14 371 07 being the cost of paid department for eight months or an average of $1 796 29 per month and there is no doubt that all this money has been honestly and economically expended There must of course be a large allowance made for the department being new and more expensive than it will be in the future but it must also be remembered that these figures do not include interest on the extensive plant and allowance for the engines wearing out The least expensive of the four engine companies for the past eight months has been No 1 the difference being principally in the matter of repairs there being none in April or August but no coal was bought in those months The following is the supply account for Engine No 1 for each month January $539 12 February $551 March $493 60 April $468 May $596 50 June $478 48 July $495 58 August $461 [illegible] being an average of $507 28 per month and this was the cheapest of the companies These latter figures represent simply the actual running expenses of one company Does $500 per month seem so very large for twenty three double hydrants each with a capacity of more than any one of our present fire engines always ready for work and to when it is considered that they must be bought put in position and kept in repair by the elevator company at its own expense with a chance that at the end of ten years they will have these same hydrants on hand with part of the necessary pipes for their operation? It is a great saving for the city to have no repairs to pay for The total paid for the repairs of the four engine companies for the past eight months is $594 15

But let the city accede to Fair Play's proposition for it to buy more engines each of which will cost nearly a year's rental to the Elevator Company and it has not then bought horses or land or built engine houses

The city must have further protection against fire We have now no more engines than we had ten years ago when Portland was an overgrown village For its size there is no more gallant or efficient fire department that that of Portland A volunteer department it has long been her pride But five companies can not do the work of ten and now that a new ferry boat has been placed on the route of the Veto—Portland's fire boat—all of our wharves might happen to burn before the Veto appeared Portland must remember that she is a city and that jealousy of locality and narrow mindedness are traits of country villages

The Portland Hydraulic Elevator Company has made its proposition to the council fairly and above board and as a matter of business It asks an opportunity to show what it can do in the way of throwing water for fire purposes It will expend no money in lobbying This measure must go through on its merits or not at all It has estimated the cost of keeping its part of the contract with a fair profit to itself It has not asked one price in order to get a smaller one If the city does not accept the proposition the elevator company will still remain in existence All of the stock in the elevator company is owned by the two Captains Ainsworth the bulk of whose wealth is invested in Portland If any taxpayer of Portland wishes to satisfy himself of the capacity of the elevator company to perform what it proposes it will cheerfully give him an opportunity It has nothing to hide The common council has the matter now under advisement It is for them to accept or reject and that solely as a business proposition

THE PORTLAND HYDRAULIC ELEVATOR CO

, "Fools take to themselves the respect given to their office. But Kidney-Wort commands respect for its own solid merits tested tried and found not wanting in any essential principle required for the cure of dyspepsia, piles malaria and all diseases of the kidneys bowels and liver

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

TUESDAY Sept 25

Oregon stocks show an improvement on the New York boards to day the expected arrival of Mr Villard no doubt being an influence The cause of the present deal is still unexplained but it is again asserted that Jay Gould is at the bottom

General trade is quite good the grocery lines being remarkably brisk Some complaint is made by merchants that they are not provided with sufficient freight room from San Francisco. To-day a steamer brought a full freight including large shipments of canned goods, soap and other groceries The canned goods trade is developing into huge proportions California pack meets with much better sale than does eastern because both quality and weight is more satisfactory A car of eastern mixed was received yesterday on consignment

FREIGHTS—The San Francisco market is in good tone and the general feeling here has improved yet shippers will not concede a point, and no business is doing In overland freight a large movement is noted and receipts show up well The more northern country is sending a large amount of live stock and bull cattle

WHEAT—To day's report shows a steady market for cargo and No 1 winter for shipment being quoted up Liverpool spot is firm With us the steady trade is doing and reports as to paying prices are highly contradictory Shippers' limits now are $1 57½ for valley and $1 55 for eastern but we are reliably reported at a slight advance on these Receipts just now are not large

FLOUR—Market steady at $4 75 for standard brands in lots For shipment the market is flat and a lot of Walla Walla offered on market received a bid of $4 90

MILLSTUFFS—Receipts from all quarters show an increase and values must soon weaken

OATS—Offerings continue free with good to extra choice bringing 55@57½c

POTATOES—Market rather weak at 50@55c per bushel for Oregon California selling at 1¼c Sweets, 2c

FRUIT—Receipts of California by steamer were generally damaged but meet with good sale. Oregon apples in stock at $1@1 25

BUTTER—California receipts mostly came in halves and barrels and is held at 35c Roll brings 40c but as it is quoted at 45@47½c at home no choice grades are here Oregon brings 35@45 as to quality and package

EGGS—Quotations irregular but fresh will bring 30c

CHICKENS—Quote young $3 50@4 old $4@5 50

RICE—Cutting is reported to lay in China mixed of which there are large stocks

THE RELATIVE VALUE OF WHEAT

New York, Sept 25—[Special]—Samples of foreign wheat from Australia New Zealand England Egypt East India and South America and also from Oregon and California were exhibited yesterday at the produce exchange by William Bingham & Co The object of the exhibitors was to show New York dealers what they had to compete with in the Liverpool market Choice Australian wheat brings the highest price in that market and after it comes Oregon New Zealand and California wheat. Wheat of the eastern states of this country is higher than that from East India and the Egyptian is the poorest and cheapest On the whole it appears that this country has little to fear from competition in Liverpool the cost of transportation from Australia and New Zealand being very high

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

On the Chickahominy.

Under date of May 5, 1883 Col R F Flanders of Dover, N H sends us the following While on duty in the army of the Potomac, in the swamps of the Chickahominy I contracted a complication of diseases that culminated in spinal trouble paralysis on one side and severe disease of the kidneys and bladder and general urinal weakness. For a long time I was under the treatment of the best physicians and tried many of the so called remedies but received no permanent benefit While I was in the drug business in Boston I heard favorable accounts of the efficacy of Hunt's Remedy for diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs and having determined to give it a trial I purchased it of Mr. [illegible] drug store Dover N H and have received great relief from using it. The severe pains in my back are removed and I am able to sleep soundly and obtain rest at night, which for so long I could not do the weakness in the urinary organs has been relieved and I greatly regret that I did not use the great merits of Hunt's Remedy when I was first taken ill as I am satisfied it would have saved me from several years of suffering and I am more strongly convinced of this after learning of the many remarkable cures effected by Hunt's Remedy in a case of Bright's Disease in Dover after the patient had been pronounced incurable by celebrated physicians.

Mr Tibbits is a retired druggist formerly located in Boston and is a thoroughly reliable citizen Com Fn

Has been more destructive to human health and life than war pestilence and famine combined It is said that a distinguished writer many years ago said this Is it not true [illegible] The poor victim of Blood Poison [illegible] aged with Mercury to cure it mixes and then dosed with iodides to cure him of the Mercurial Poisoning but instead of any relief the drug breaks down his general health and makes him a cripple and the other roles his appetite organs To those afflicted in this way Swift's Specific is the greatest boon on earth and is worth more than its weight in gold. It will drive the Mercurial Poison out of the system, and brings the sufferer back to health and happiness Every person who has ever been salivated should by all means take a thorough course of this remedy

JEFFERSONVILLE Twiggs Co Georgia.

Five years ago I found on my plantation a colored man who was badly diseased He stated that five years before he had contracted a violent case of Blood Poison and had been treated by many physicians, all failing to cure him I treated him with Swift's Specific and in a short time he was sound and well and has not had a symptom of the disease since
